

Shaq is out: Shaquille O'Neal wants new nickname for Celtics move

Shaquille O'Neal, who recently signed with the Boston Celtics, appealed to his new fans for a new nickname. One linguist says that sports nicknames are thriving thanks to heavy sports media coverage.

In this Oct. 27, 2009 file photo, Cleveland Cavaliers' Shaquille O'Neal (33) tries to pass around Boston Celtics' Kevin Garnett during an NBA basketball game in Cleveland. O'Neal signed with the Celtics this week, sparking talk over what his new nickname might be.

Tony Dejak/AP/File

+ Enlarge

More USA

Iraqi forces ready for US pullout, says Army's Odierno

Like You like this Be the first of your friends to like this. · Admin
Page · Error Unlike

About these ads

Subscribe to the weekly MONITOR and SAVE 71%

By Matt Rocheleau, Contributor / August 6, 2010

Boston
Since the mid-week announcement of Shaquille O'Neal's signing with the Celtics, Boston fans have posed a slew of new nicknames they hope will be as memorable as some of the monikers the 18-year veteran NBA center has already accrued.

Related Stories

Boston Celtics move to sign Shaquille O'Neal

Shaquille O'Neal wants a new nickname: the 'Green Monster'?

While Mr. O'Neal, who may become Boston's new "Green Monster," may boast more nicknames than most athletes, the designations are a tradition in the sports world.

O'Neal is a one-man nickname machine, with double-digits in whimsical monikers. But some think that "Shaq" might be an anomaly in the sports nickname cottage industry and that the practice of nicknaming athletes might be on the wane.

Some argue that nicknames are less prevalent now than in prior decades because "athletes follow

Most viewed

1. Fidel Castro warns of nuclear war, climate change – ignores Cuba issues
2. Why GOP reaction is muted as judge affirms gay marriage rights
3. Did Mark Papermaster, Apple iPhone exec, leave over 'Antennagate'?
4. Green living: Off the grid families pioneer sustainable energy lifestyles
5. North Korea seizes South Korean fishing boat. How long will it hold the crew?
6. Russia wildfires: Thick, toxic smog chokes Moscow residents
7. Opinion: Gay marriage: Why Judge Walker got Proposition 8 ruling wrong
8. Pope Benedict XVI's 30-year campaign to reassert conservative Catholicism
9. Rep. Paul Ryan's tax reform is no flimflam
10. New poll: angry at US, Arabs support an Iran nuclear bomb money instead of staying with one team," Robert Kennedy, a linguist at the University of California, Santa Barbara who has closely studied nicknames in sports, wrote in an e-mail.

"But I have not been convinced that there are fewer nicknames, and I could counter-argue that player movement brings more players in contact with more press pools, creating more opportunities for nicknames for each individual," Mr. Kennedy wrote.

Kennedy believes the question deserves more scientific scrutiny, but he is inclined to think nicknames have increased recently. "I think there is a lot more written and spoken about any given game, so I would suspect there are more [nicknames] now," he added. "I think there is also a growing consciousness of nicknames, which may drive our desire to continue to come up with new ones."

Kennedy divides sports nicknames into two types – those that are longer, descriptive phrases, or phrasal nicknames (e.g. "Sultan of Swat" for George Herman Ruth) and those that are shorter, one- to two-syllable nicknames ("Babe," for example, also for the aforementioned Mr. Ruth).

"I've come across numerous editorials claiming basically 'nicknames aren't as creative as they used to be' but such arguments unfairly compare old phrasal nicknames with contemporary short forms," Kennedy wrote.

The two nicknames types have distinct functions and origins. Phrasal nicknames are typically coined by print or broadcast journalists to make their story-telling more engaging and interesting for their audience, according to Kennedy. Short-form nicknames are usually created by friends or teammates as an abbreviated manner of addressing someone they know.

"For example you might write a story about 'The Big Cactus' but if you were trying to get his attention across a crowded room you wouldn't use that, you'd yell 'Shaq!,'" Kennedy added.

Kennedy believes it is unusual for athletes to nickname themselves, which is perhaps why Shaq asked requested that his new neighbors in Beantown craft one.

"Hello green town. ok what u got 4 nicknames? make um good," Shaq wrote in a Twitter post Wednesday night.

"I would bet the 'Big Shamrock' would come out at some point," wrote Kennedy.

With nearly 6,000 votes in as of Friday morning, "The Big Shamrock" was second in an online Boston.com poll trailing "Green Monster."

All sports equally lend themselves to short-form nicknames, but there are likely fewer phrasal nicknames used in football because of the sport's larger rosters, Kennedy said. This is why names describing entire defensive lines as opposed to individual nicknames for each lineman, for example, are used.

So, which nickname is a sport nickname expert's all-time favorite?

"I'm a hockey fan, so my favorites come from that sport. I like Pocket Rocket for Henri Richard and I like the Chico story, too ('Chico' for Glenn Resch, so named because he looked like [comedian] Freddy Prinze [who starred in the 1970s sitcom 'Chico and the Man'])," Kennedy wrote. "But I got into this by being interested in short-form nicknames, so I actually have a soft spot for Alfie (for [Daniel] Alfredsson), Spets (for [Jason] Spezza), and Nabby (for [Evgeni] Nabokov)."

[Editor's note: The original headline of this article incorrectly asserted that Robert Kennedy credited the Internet for increased incidence of sports nicknames. Mr. Kennedy did credit wider

Photos of the day

08.06.10 >

In Pictures

Space photos of the day 08/06

Inside CSMonitor.com:

Pakistan floods now worse than 2005 earthquake, say officials

Pakistan floods have already affected as many as 12 million people and destroyed or damaged more than 600,000 homes, say Pakistani officials. That's already worse than the 2005 earthquake, but monsoon season is only half over.

Why GOP reaction is muted as judge affirms gay marriage rights

Pope Benedict XVI's 30-year campaign to reassert conservative Catholicism

Horrible fungus driving bug-loving brown bats to extinction

New poll: angry at US, Arabs support an Iran nuclear bomb

FREE 5x7 Custom Cover Book

About these ads

for new

FREE daily e-mail newsletter

CSMonitor.com top stories, cartoons and photos

Sign up

See sample | Privacy Policy

interest in sports, but he did not specifically mention the Internet.]

Related stories

- Boston Celtics move to sign Shaquille O'Neal
- Shaquille O'Neal wants a new nickname: the 'Green Monster'?

Follow us on Twitter and Facebook.

Like You like this Be the first of your friends to like this. · Admin
Page · Error Unlike
You like this.

Try the new weekly Monitor at a price so low...it's like getting 18 issues FREE!

What happens when ordinary people decide to pay it forward? Extraordinary change. See how individuals are making a difference...

SOS Children's Village surrogate mother Fawzia al-Thiab (in head scarf) hugs five of her young charges in the kitchen of her home in Qodsaya, Syria, near Damascus. Twelve family houses are home to about 100 children here.

Defying tradition in Syria to serve as a full-time surrogate mother

Fawzia al-Thiab has left behind the idea of having children of her own to be a foster mother to orphans – more than 35 of them so far.

Become part of the Monitor community

16,200 Fans | 5,950 on Twitter | 700K RSS subscribers

Want more?

Click here to receive 4 FREE ISSUES!

USA »

Did Mark Papermaster, Apple iPhone exec, leave over 'Antennagate'?

The Culture »

Middle Men: movie review

The Culture »

The Disappearance of Alice Creed: movie review

World »

Africa Monitor: Rwanda ex-spy chief says Paul Kagame reaching

USA »

Can social media save the world? Some nonprofits give it a try.

USA »

Returning to New Orleans: a photo essay

Ads by Google

\(About these\)

LEED Exam Prep

Pass the LEED Exam. Signup Now!

Sponsored Links

Booking Agency
Grabow Entertainment Agency
Business Resources
Business Cards
Checks

Graphic Design
Logo Design - LogoBee
Real Estate
International Shipping
Mortgage Calculator

Speakers Bureau
Christian Speakers
Motivational Speakers
Sports Speakers Bureaus
Web Services

Get LEED Certified.
www.EverblueEnergy.com/LEED

The Making of an Eco City

Story of transforming Huangbaiyu into China's first eco city.
www.ShannonMay.com

Ads by Google

Computers
PowerEdge Memory
Charitable Donations
Car Donations
Boat Donations

Moving
Moving Companies
Real Estate

Dedicated Servers
Web Hosting

The Premier
Online Golf Shop

SHOP NOW!

About these ads

TaylorMade Cleveland
GOLF GOLF

NIKEGOLF ADAMSGOLF

IN THE HOLE!
GOLF

Home | About | Site Map | Monitor Topics | Contact Us | Subscribe | Text | Specials | Multimedia | Make Us Your Home Page
Careers | Corrections | Find us online | Advertise With Us | Monitor Mall | Today's Article on Christian Science

© The Christian Science Monitor. All Rights Reserved. Terms under which this service is provided to you. Privacy Policy.