

The Daily Collegian

New England's Largest College Daily online

Front Page
INTERACT
Login
Email Edition
About Us
Forums
Podcasts
Syndication
Letter to the Editor
Classifieds
Ad Rates
Archives
Search
SPECIAL ISSUES
The Score 2007 Online
UMass YakBack
BLOGS
News Blog
Sports Blog
Arts & Living Blog
LINKS
UMass Amherst
Amherst Wire
CampusLIVE
College Publisher
PRINT PDF
COLLEGIAN RESOURCES
Sovereign Bank
Home > News

Veterans, grannies protest war

Matt Rocheleau, Collegian Staff
Issue date: 10/2/08 Section: News

As a sergeant in the U.S. Army serving in Iraq, Scott Palmer recalls having his weapon aimed at a silhouette of what appeared to be an armed person standing in the tower of a building.

Media Credit: Danielle Augeri/Collegian

Keeping himself from pulling the trigger prevented Palmer from making what he said would have been the biggest mistake of his life, as the silhouette turned out to be a young boy holding a broomstick.

This was just one of many stories shared by members of the local Iraq Veterans Against the War (IVAW) chapter who provided emotional testimonies of their service in Iraq and Afghanistan at the Cape Cod Lounge Wednesday night.

The event called "Winter Soldier" is one of many talks being held across the U.S. by the IVAW as a continuation of an event held in March when over 200 veterans and soldiers, as well as many Iraqi and Afghan civilians, met in Maryland to discuss their experiences.

The main goals of the IVAW and the panel discussion are immediate withdrawal of forces in Iraq, reparations for Iraqis and better support for returning servicemen and women.

"It's not easy for us to tell our stories. They drudge up difficult emotions," said Ted Goodnight who left the Army National Guard after 15 years of service including a tour in Afghanistan.

Goodnight said when he realized there was no support for the troops from the government he decided to leave his service.

After returning from Afghanistan, Goodnight was sent to Mississippi to provide humanitarian aid through the National Guard after Hurricane Katrina.

He said his group was deployed with weapons and ammunition, which had never been the case in his four previous humanitarian aid assignments.

"Instead of doing humanitarian work we were marching up and down the streets with loaded rifles to stop the supposed looting," he said.

The speakers told similar stories of how they came to oppose the wars they were fighting and how some memories are hard to get over.

"Things were definitely not right when I returned home after what I'd seen, witnessed and done in Iraq," said Palmer.

Nathan Lusignan, who served as a military police officer in Iraq, told how his compound was attacked by a suicide car bomb, killing a fellow soldier.

"These people were so disgusted with us and could not tolerate us so much that they killed themselves. When I talk about it, it just makes me feel...not well," he said.

Continued...

POLL

This month, UMass Chaplain Kent Higgins was reprimanded by the University for offering credits to students for their participation in the Obama campaign. Should a state university offer credits to students for partisan campaigning?

- Yes -- it encourages educated citizenship.
- No -- it compromises the University's ethic.
- It's all the same to me.

View Results

24 Hour News

Article Tools

Share:

Subscribe:

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian has an 'open door' policy with regards to reader comments. In the interest of facilitating an open discourse, comments are not screened or edited for spelling, mechanics or content. Comments on our website cannot be verified by The Collegian and in no way represent the opinions of The Massachusetts Daily Collegian or its staff.

Viewing Comments 1 - 1 of 1

Ed Cutting

posted 10/02/08 @ 7:19 AM EST

I look at this quite simply – it is a violation of the UCMJ to commit war crimes, and it is a violation of the UCMJ to fail to report others committing war crimes. (Continued...)

Details Reply to this comment

Post a Comment

Name: (required)

Email: (required)

NOTE: Email address will not be published

Website:

Notify me of followup comments via e-mail

Type your comment below (html not allowed)

I am not posting spam. I understand posting spam or other comments that are unrelated to this article will cause my comment to be flagged for deletion and possibly cause my IP address to be permanently banned from this server.

News

Pagan pride '08
Drum Corps leader honored
Library evacuation forces study break
NPHC hosts 'Meet the Greeks' Event
Real Talk: Black in America

Arts & Living

Voices of Guantanamo Bay to haunt Amherst
Students' guide to English pubs
Pinback ready to dominate
Sci-fi "Eagle Eye" full of action and explosions

Editorial / Opinion

In Mass., it's a 'green' ballot
Invisible campaigning
SGA, student apathy
Unresponsible hospitals

Sports

COMMENTARY: Minutemen can't find net
UM struggles to capitalize
Minutemen return to McGuirk after bye
Salvaggione nets game winners
Beam leads 49er's

